from the law and economics perspective the book reveals the gaps of the trade multilateral system that allows governments to draw upon subsidies strategies according to their unilateral interests the book suggests that failures in wto mechanisms has become great challenge for the multilateral system to restrain trade diversion due to their character as public expenditures since they are granted by governments through tax incentives or direct financial investment granting subsidies are directly linked to the economic power of the countries for this reason some subsidies constitute a serious unfair trade practice that needs to be fought multilaterally depending on global cooperation so that all countries can have access to international trade poor countries are severely affected by these practices meanwhile not all developing countries are impacted the same way because there are considerable levels of development based on this the book proposes a preventive mechanism to discourage subterfuge and opportunism of rich countries in search of efficiency in order to do so firstly it will be addressed the economic theories that underlie free trade and the subsidies influence over international economy next the law and economics approach will be presented by which the problematic economic and political subsidy strategies of member countries will be analyzed based on these premises the book shows how subsidies and countervailing measures are regulated within the wto and it points out the failures of the wto mechanisms to combat specific subsidies which accentuate the differences between rich and poor countries finally the book proposes preventive measures to hinder harmful effects of subsidies from materializing this work outlines an analysis of the relationship between real prices of real production and prices resulting from speculation in the period 2000 2016 the specific agricultural commodity selected to carry out this study is mexican yellow corn whose prices are analyzed based on the spot market on the real or physical goods market and on the results of speculation within the chicago board of trade cbot of the cme group located in the united states of america to achieve the above a linear regression analysis using the ordinary least squares ols method and time series data has been applied we consider that this tool is the most appropriate to test the hypothesis planted based on currently available data among the main findings of the analysis is that the growing speculation in agricultural commodity markets in this case mexican yellow corn brings with it a series of structural problems in the mexican agricultural sector such as the agrifood crisis the lack of food sovereignty and a highly speculative pricing process coming from abroad in this sense this work shows evidence of the need to put forward proposals in terms of public policy whose axis is doi doi org 10 52501 cc 050

the concepts of social networks social capital and trust play an increasingly central role in the social sciences they have become indispensable conceptual tools for the analysis of post industrial late modern societies which are characterized by such features as the relative decline of formal hierarchies the development of flexible social arrangements in the sphere of production and the extreme mobility of capital this is the first book to study the interrelationships between these important concepts both theoretically and empirically drawing on empirical investigations from a range of diverse european social contexts the contributors develop an economic sociology that builds on and extends established theoretical perspectives the book opens with an introduction to the theoretical ideas relating social capital to reciprocity trust and social networks in line with current debates the authors go on to discuss the concept of social embeddedness addressing the economic effects of social capital by examining the network and trust foundations of labour markets and investigating the structural limits of trusting networks they conclude with an exploration of the impact of networking and the functioning of trust and social capital on the economic arrangements and performance of nascent capitalist economies in post communist europe this thematically unified collection by a team of distinguished contributors from across europe provides an innovative and distinctive contribution to an expanding area of research this paper shows evidence of positive effects in the economic development of sending communities in mexico due to migration the principal hypothesis of this study is that remittances knowledge and experience acquired by migrants during their migratory cycle can be translated into larger economic growth in the out migration municipalities this result presupposes that government could create complementary incentives to take advantage of profitable activities economic and migration data for each municipality is used which allows to associate characteristics of communities migratory flows and the effects in profitable activities there are three sections a first section describes the sending municipalities according to migratory intensity and their urban rural nature the second section analyzes the relation between remittances and socioeconomic conditions of the communities in a third section the effect over time is estimated relating per capita income growth and migratory flows intensity the most relevant results are the existence of income convergence over time between high and low migration municipalities in the north and south of mexico as well we find a positive and significant relation between per capita income growth and the percentage of households that receive remittances across communities both at the country level and for the northern and southern regions separately national bureau of economic research web site
